DETAILED ACTION

Response to Amendment

1. In response to the amendment received May 24, 2004:
 - a. Claim 1 is pending. Claims 2 and 3 have been cancelled;
 - b. The prior art rejection of record is withdrawn in light of the amendment.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

2. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

3. Claim 1 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by U.S. patent No. 6,726,892 (Au).

Au claims priority to provisional application 60/268,887 filed February 14, 2001.

The Examiner has reviewed the content of the provisional application, whereby the disclosure of the provisional application is identical to the disclosure of Au. Thus the prior art reference Au has perfected its priority claim to the provisional application filed February 14, 2001.

Au discloses a hydrogen storage material comprising plural carbon carriers having an electric conductivity and plural fine particles carried on each carrier and having a hydrogen absorbing ability (abstract). The amount of the particles is from 0.1-5 wt. % (col. 4, ll. 52-57). The metal alloy includes aluminum in all examples and in one example includes aluminum and nickel (col. 5, ll. 34-54). The average particle size is no greater than 100 nm (col. 4, ll. 1-8). The carbon carriers are carbon nanotubes (col. 4, ll. 30-51 as applied to claim 1).

4. Claim 1 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by U.S. patent Application Publication No. 2001/0016283 (Shiraishi).

Shiraishi discloses a hydrogen storage material comprising plural carbon carriers having an electric conductivity and plural fine particles carried on each carrier and having a hydrogen absorbing ability (abstract). The amount of the particles is from 0.1-10 wt. % (paragraphs [0191] and [0267]). The metal catalyst can be Ti, La and V (paragraph [0268]). The average particle size is no greater than 1 micron (paragraph [0266]). The carbon carriers are carbon nanotubes (paragraph [0187] as applied to claim 1).

Response to Arguments

5. Applicant's arguments with respect to claim 1 have been considered but are moot in view of the new ground(s) of rejection.

Conclusion

6. Applicant's amendment necessitated the new ground(s) of rejection presented in this Office action. Accordingly, THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. See MPEP § 706.07(a). Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the date of this final action.
